PROGRAM BACKGROUND

The 5th Annual Business of Personalized Medicine Summit (BPM Summit) will take place on Thursday, May 10, 2018, in South San Francisco, California. On behalf of our co-hosts and Advisory Board, thank you for considering a sponsorship or other supporting role. The following prospectus provides background on the BPM Summit and outlines available participation opportunities for 2018. To discuss a specific opportunity in more detail or to request a customized sponsorship, please contact Allison Jones at ajones@foley.com.

What is the BPM Summit?

For the past five years, Foley & Lardner LLP, the Personalized Medicine Coalition, and our multi-disciplinary Advisory Board have collaborated to host the Business of Personalized Medicine, a one-day thought leadership forum focused on the business issues impacting the personalized medicine marketplace and the future of health care. Through various industry partnerships, we bring together key stakeholders from financial entities, life sciences companies, healthcare providers, and research and policy organizations for discussions that deliver critical insights and solutions for mainstream adoption.

What Makes the BPM Summit Unique?

Forums for discussing personalized medicine have focused, for the most part, on relatively specialized areas such as underlying technologies, financing, regulatory pathways, or payment issues. The BPM Summit attempts to address cross-sections of such issues with a clear eye toward modeling sustainable business models for all entities already engaged in personalized medicine as well as those that seek to enter the field. The BPM Summit aims to set itself apart from other conferences by focusing on the business challenges, trends, and opportunities within the personalized medicine industry, while also examining the potential implications for research and development and healthcare delivery.
